1	6	The location of Gas Service Isolation Valve is determined by the gas transporter, but criteria and obligation by the gas transporter should be clearly stated and decision should be reasonable. For example in our case for our Jurong Island plant under construction, PowerGas determined to place it underneath the public road, leaving to us to build a piece of pipelline crossing a service corridor before getting to our site fence. This implies we have to build and own a piece of pipe to be placed in a land not leased by us and which therefore we can not fully control. Thanks for feedback.
